An experiment in white

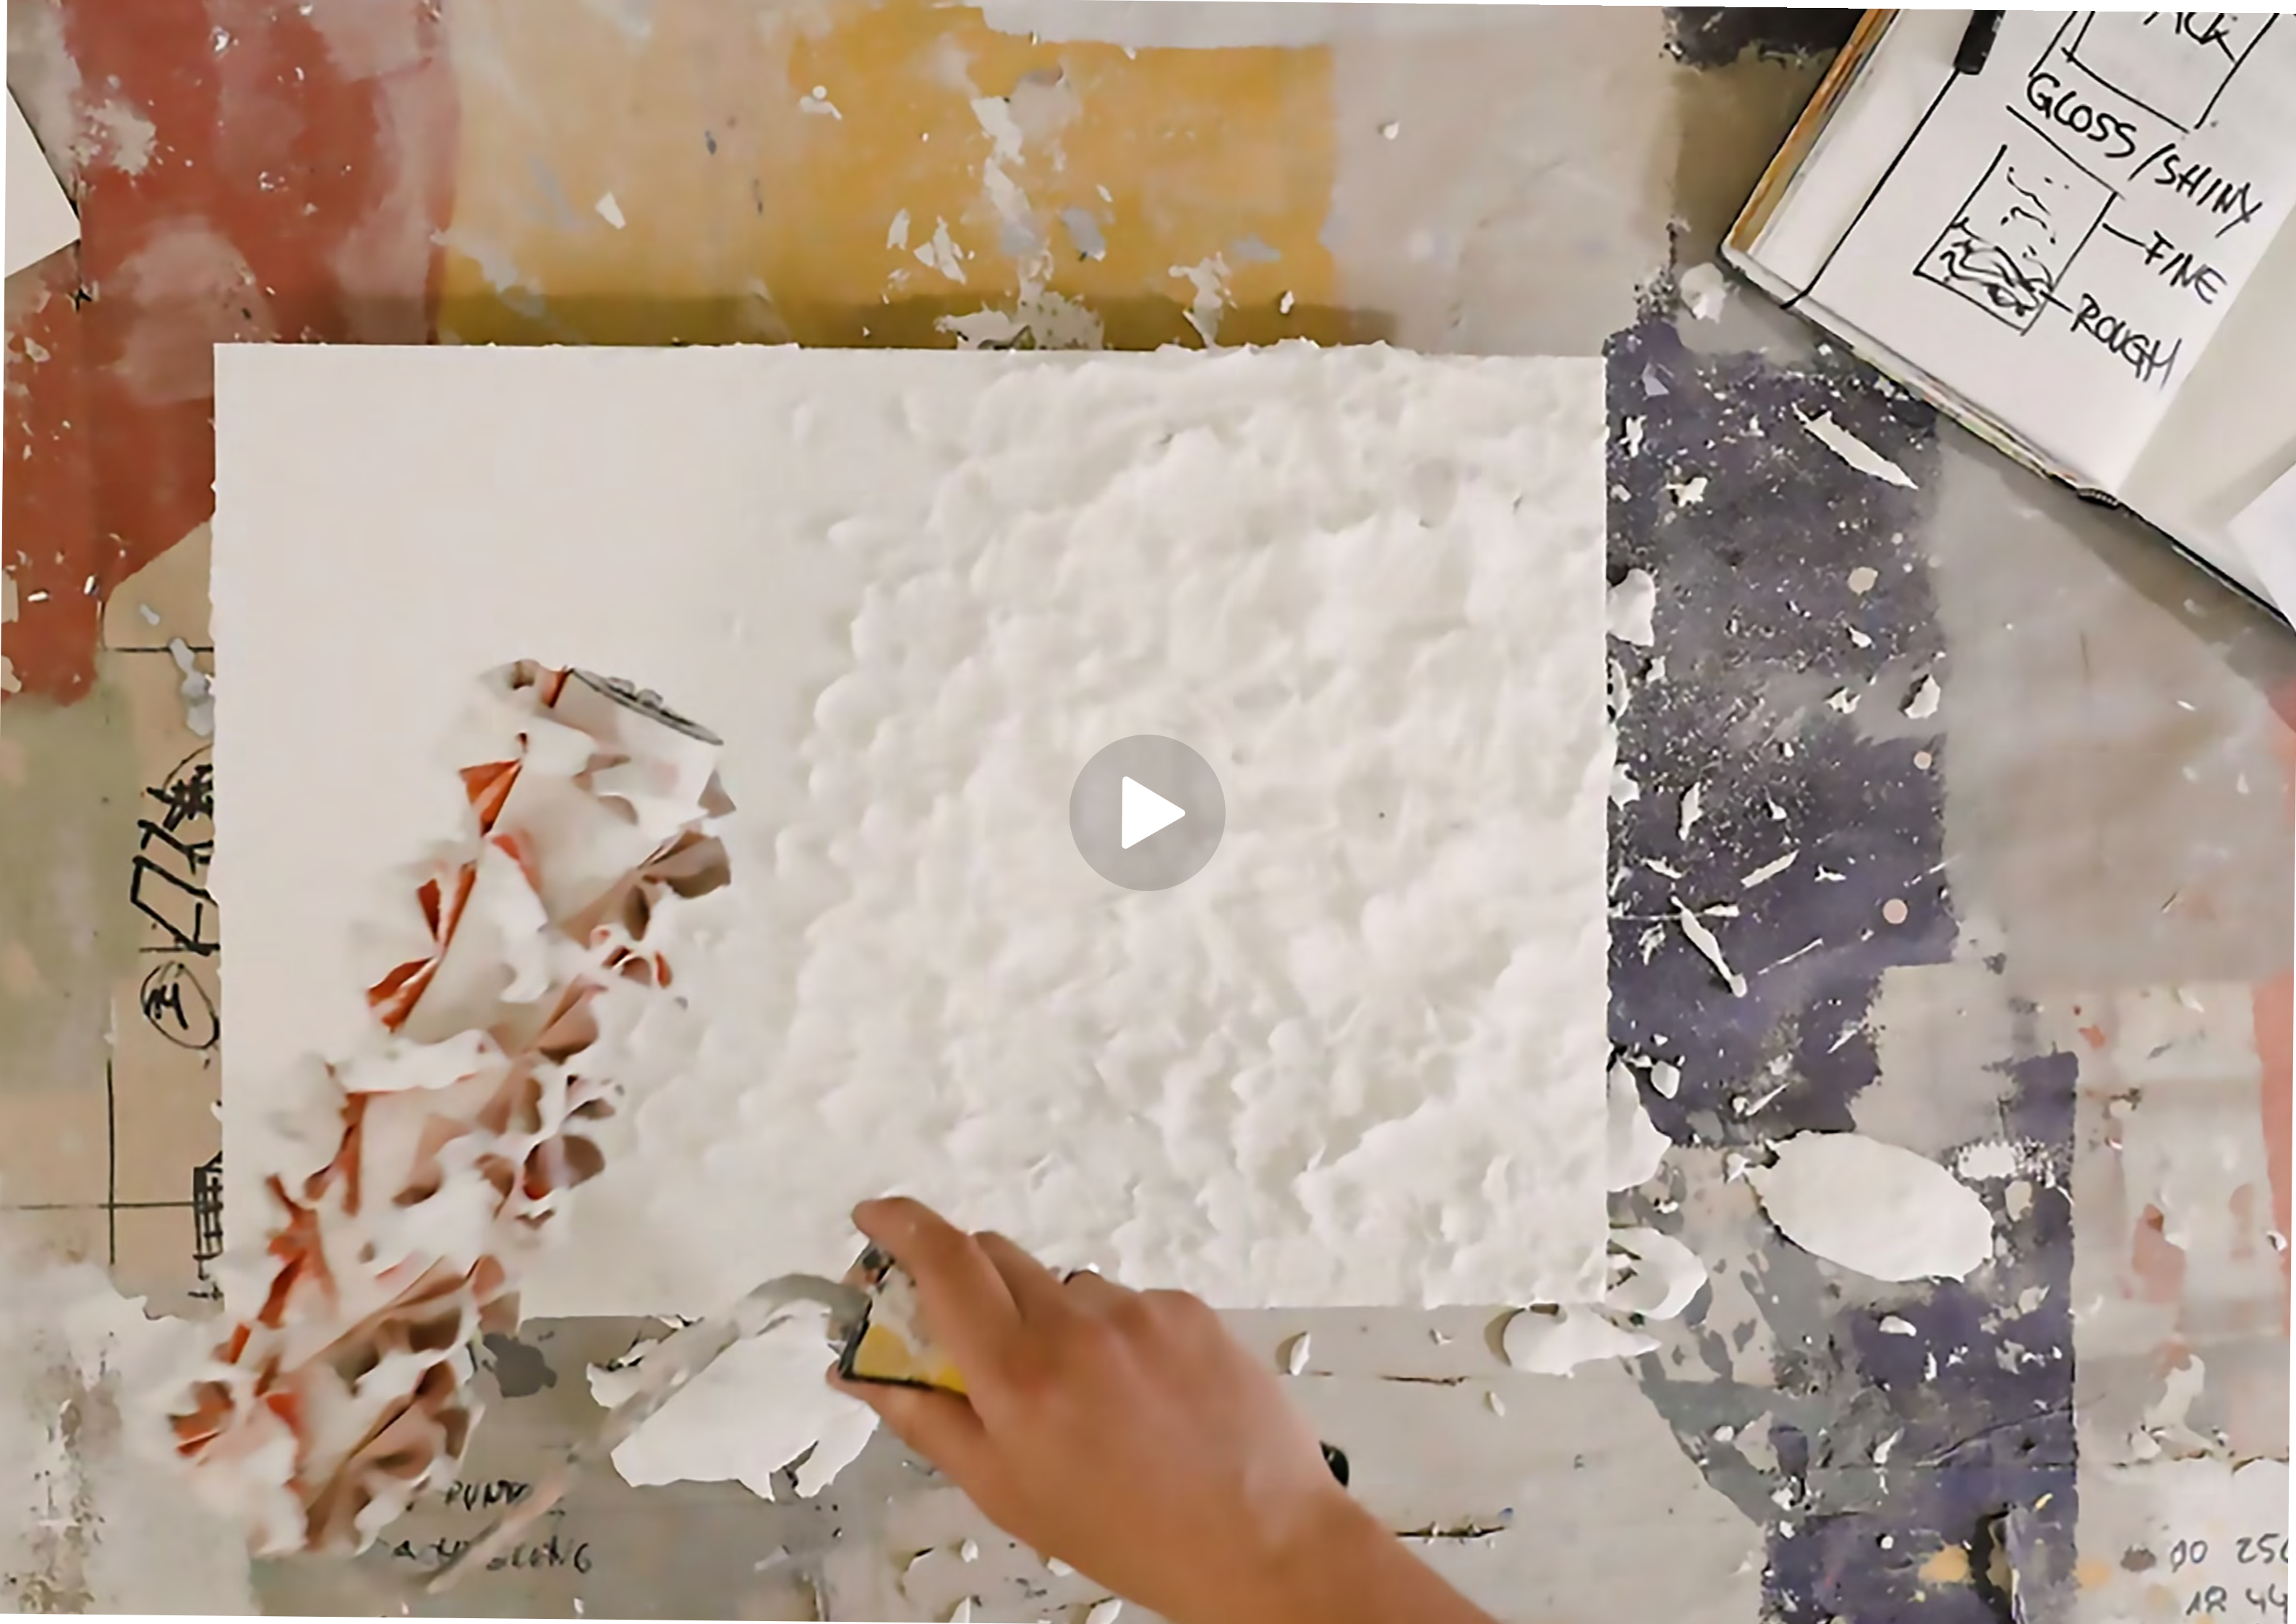

What inspires you when you think about the colour white in your work? That was the question we asked five architects – and we also asked each of them to send a quote and photo to accompany their answer. Based on their submissions, our Product Design department developed an abstract white sample with a unique texture.

This image shows the interpretation submitted by Luca Selva, who also sent us inspiration in the form of a question that artist Rémy Zaugg posed about the absence of white: “When the snow melts, where does the white go?”
